Asia's Rising Powers

This stream explores the political and economic implications of the shift of wealth and power to new and rising powers in Asia. Courses within the stream have a particular (though not exclusive) focus on India and China. Students analyse the domestic and global politics of these emerging powers, the social and political impact of rising powers, as well as their impact on global and regional governance. In addition, this stream includes courses that explore Australia's engagement with the international order, and particularly examines the domestic political implications of Australia's engagement with the Indo-Pacific region.

Global Governance and Justice

This stream explores the role of international institutions and regimes in the governance of complex issues. It pays particular attention to how governance is now increasingly complex involving non state actors such as credit rating agencies and private security firms. It also focuses on new forms of governance at the national, regional, and global levels dealing with cross border issues such as environment, migration and finance. Courses within this stream analyse the impact of these governance responses on the allocation and distribution of wealth, power and authority and examines debates on and possibilities for more just and legitimate global governance arrangements.

International Security

This stream explores the nature of security, conflict, and intervention in global politics. It explores contending theoretical perspectives on international conflict, violence, and war on human populations. Courses within this stream focus on the role of strategic culture in defining interests, intelligence, the impact of globalisation on changing forms of security and violence, and the increasing level of human insecurity. The stream takes a particular interest in non-military cross border issues that impact on human security, including environmental degradation, climate change, migration and trade.
